Seeing there was likely to be a difficulty Dr. Gentry took House back into the store, while his assistant showed Allison out of the door. When first addressed by House, Allison bad his pistol'cocked and leveled at him. Early yesterday morning, according to common report, House went to Allison's office, and told him that the affair might as well he settled then and there, and levited him out. Agricultural Schools a Great Nood-A Good Suggestion to Farmers Residing Near Railroads-Etc.

Jackson, October 21.--Your editorial

rom an Occasional Cerrespondent

n the APPEAL of the twentieth in regard gricultural schools in France is well calcusted to de much good. This is a subject which the various granges in West Tennesse loated as farmers as well as lawyers or do ors. What more ennobling pursuit than a ion)ture? Any industrious young man, wh will work on a farm and take care of what he makes, can in a few years own a farm. He can get one-third of what he raises, and have land, supplies, and workstock furnished him. If he only makes two baies of cotion a year, and an abundance of corn and meat, the next year he would get one-half what he raised by furnishing his own supplies. The first year his part would only be two-thirds of a bale of cotion, but the second year he would get one bale. In this way he would containe to increase every year if he were industrious and economical, and in that time he could buy work-stock, and then soon after he could buy land. I have heard a suggestion made here will work on a farm and take care of what he land. I have heard a suggestion made her which I think a good one, and that is for the farmers to sow their fields that are on the lin of the various railroads in rye and when early; so as to cause them to present a cheerfu early; so as to cause them to present a cheerful appearance in the winter and spring, and also to pasture their sheep and caives upon them in dry weather, and in addition to this it was suggested that they should put good fences around these fields. In this way all persons traveling on the railroads would receive a good impression of our country, and this would induce immigration. If you ever come to Jackson, be sore to stop at the Lancaster house. It is certainly one of the best eating houses in West Tennessee, and the proprietor is very gentlemanly and accommonity of the second of prietor is very gentlemaniy and accommodating. There is a report that the suprems court is equally divided on the Memphis court question—three in favor of sustaining the act abolishing the courts and three against. How this is, I cannot say. They are now picking cotton rapidly in this county, and it is nearly all open.
